Dear Congressional Leaders:

Thank you for your leadership in expanding the use of telehealth during the COVID-19 public health emergency (PHE). The increased availability of telehealth continues to serve as a lifeline for Americans with mental health conditions. Approximately 32% of American adults report symptoms of anxiety and/or depressive disorder—an increase of 11% since 2019.1 We know that the negative mental health outcomes for children and adolescents have been especially pronounced during this time; over 20% of school-aged children have experienced declines in mental or emotional health since the pandemic began.2 There is no indication the negative mental health impacts experienced by Americans are waning. According to the latest available data, mental health diagnoses accounted for 62.2% of telehealth visits in November 2021 versus 48.1% in November 2020 and 29.6% in November 2019.3,4

As you continue to negotiate the Fiscal Year 2022 Appropriations package or other must-pass legislative vehicles, we urge you to take into consideration the immense mental health needs of Americans and delay implementation of the telemental health in-person requirement as a prerequisite for coverage of a telehealth service within Section 123 of the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2021 (P.L. 116-260).5 This new in-person requirement is slated to go into effect day one after the PHE ends. Furthermore, it is our understanding that even if the telehealth flexibilities were extended for two years that without an explicit delay or repeal consistent with other telehealth flexibilities, this particular restriction on telemental health would still be in place. This would mean that telemental health would be one of the only modalities subject to an in-person requirement. Given the growing need for mental health services throughout the nation and acute behavioral health workforce shortages, this is counter to the intent of ensuring more Americans receive life changing care; and, in fact, could further exacerbate our nation’s growing mental health crisis. As leadership is aware, there is no in-person requirement for individuals seeking medical services or substance use disorder treatment via telehealth.

To that end, we ask for your leadership in creating a pathway to delay this telemental in-person requirement at least through December 31, 2024. This request is aligned with current telehealth extension proposals that are under consideration including the Telemental Health Care Access Act (H.R. 2 which would eliminate the in-person requirement for telemental health and the Telehealth Extension and Evaluation Act (S. 3593) that would allow CMS to extend Medicare payments for a broad range of telehealth services for an additional two years. This additional extension—which we urge must also include a two-year delay of the telemental health in-person requirement—enables HHS to collect additional data about how telehealth impacts care delivery and health outcomes for mental health conditions to inform future policy decisions.
5 Codified as amendments to 42 U.S.C. § 1395m(m)(7).

Thank you for your consideration and we look forward to working with you to continue providing the mental health services needed for Americans across the country.

Sincerely,

2020 Mom
